

A non-profit marine conservation organization comprised of thousands of recreational anglers and coastal outdoor enthusiasts.

The purpose of Coastal Conservation Association of Maryland is to advocate for the health and sustainability of our marine resources and to conserve, promote and enhance the availability of these resources.

MISSION

The purpose of the Coastal Conservation Association of Maryland (CCA MD) is to advocate for the health and sustainability of our marine resources and to conserve, promote, and enhance the availability of these resources. CCA MD is also committed to enhancing the interaction, education, and angling enjoyment of its members through events, tournaments, seminars, and meetings. It is our resolute belief that an organization with a close-knit, well-informed, and active membership can achieve profound results in conservation while cultivating the individual recreational success and enjoyment of its members.

HISTORY

CCA MD was formed in 1995 by 100 avid anglers who were concerned about the lack of a strong conservation voice in striped bass fishery management policy. Since then, CCA MD has grown to more than 2,000 members and has achieved significant improvement in fisheries management policy, natural resource law enforcement, aquatic habitat restoration and enhancement, and natural resource conservation. CCA MD support comes from conservation-minded anglers of all kinds including those who troll, live-line, jig, crab, fly-fish, and guide professionally. CCA MD consists of a volunteer network anchored by chapters in Annapolis, Baltimore, Greater Washington, Kent Narrows, Mid-Eastern Shore, Pax River, Chestertown, and Ocean City.
